The brochure should be printed on both sides. This project can be completed in a few different ways. You can provide your students with the information to fill out their brochures, or have them find the information through Internet research. Colored pencils are better than markers for this to avoid ink coming through the other side.

If you are creating this foldable to include in an interactive notebook, a coordinating pocket has been included. I've also included a blank, generic pocket if you'd like your students to use the space for creativity.

I've included a blank brochure to use with any other explorer that has not been included in this resource. Your student should write the name of the figure on the cover right under "All About" and include a hand drawn picture in the rectangle under that.
